

Labour and Industry offers a multi-disciplinary perspective on all aspects of the social, organizational and institutional aspects of work and industrial relations. The journal publishes original, high quality research and policy papers that investigate the implications of changing work relations for employers, employees, unions, government and other social actors with a stake in industrial relations. The aims of the journal are to encourage debate and the exchange of views between researchers, to challenge the conceptual boundaries of work and industrial relations, and to contribute to the generation of new ideas by drawing on insights from diverse disciplines. These disciplines would include: industrial/employment relations, human resource management, labour and business history, labour and employment law, management and organisational studies, political science and public policy, psychology, sociology and related disciplines.

The Editorial Group encourages submission from researchers reporting original and innovative research that contributes to the theoretical, practice and public policy dimensions of work and industrial relations. It encourages researchers to locate their contribution in the local context of a study, within the context of international debates, and in developments in the study of work and industrial relations.

The Editorial Group also encourages research teams to submit proposals for themed Symposia on new streams of research that stand to make a significant contribution to research.

3 issues per annum: Issue 1 - August, Issue 2 - December, Issue 3 - April

Editorial Team

Editors-in-chief

Peter Gahan, Monash University

Bill Harley, Melbourne University

Guy Standing, University of Bath

Reviews Editors

Marco Michelotti, Monash University

Sandra Cockfield, Monash University

Associate Editors

Donna Buttigieg, Monash University

Ian Campbell, RMIT University

Richard Cooney, Monash University

Bill Harley, University of Melbourne

Anne O'Rourke, Monash University

Gaby Ramia, University of Sydney