

Rhonda Nay

Professor Rhonda Nay is Director of the Institute for Social Participation (ISP); Australian Centre for Evidence Based Aged Care (ACEBAC); Australian Institute for Primary Care (AIPC) and Professor of Interdisciplinary Aged Care at La Trobe University. Rhonda is also Director of TIME for dementia – the Victorian and Tasmanian Dementia Training Study Centre and a partner in the Dementia Collaborative Research Centre 3 (Consumers, Carers and Social Research) which is led by the Queensland University of Technology (QUT). Rhonda has Chaired the Minister's Awards for Excellence in Aged Care, been a judge for the ACSA Awards and is a Director on the Aged Care Standards and Accreditation Agency Board. She has published and presented extensively on aged care and dementia. Her research is focused on getting evidence based, interdisciplinary, person-centred care into practice. Rhonda's research interest is in supportive care environments for older people, especially those people living with dementia. Her research focuses on: staff-family relationships; sexual expression and sexuality; person-centred care; pain assessment and management; and implementation of evidence into aged care practice. Rhonda has been a member of numerous government and professional committees including the Commonwealth Aged Care Workforce Committee and the AHCA Reference Group on Continuum of Care; the National Advisory Committee on Ageing and an Expert Advisor to the International Council of Nurses. Rhonda has led and/or been a senior consultant on numerous research projects and a number of workforce related consultancy projects both at a State and National level.